Christian young people are falling into sin and away from God in record numbers. In the fast-paced life of America, the temptations to sin can be enormous.

There was a time when sexual sin in the Church was almost strictly a man's issue. Those days are gone. Christian women are becoming addicted to pornography. Others are bouncing from one sexual relationship to another.

Never has there been a time when it was so easy for a man to become addicted to sexual sin and so difficult to get free. Our culture is permeated with sexual imagery. Magazine racks offer pictures of girls in teensy bikinis. Primetime situation comedies almost continually revolve around sexual storylines involving teenage promiscuity, extra-marital affairs, homosexuality and worse. And then there is the Internet, which houses the images of any kind of sexual fantasy a man might conceive.
